Marybeth writes: “Not sure my gardens are really worthy, but wanted our members to see what transpires in the Midwest region of our vast country. These photos are of two gardens from two homes, a 1934 original stone and timber cottage we restored 15 or so years ago and the gardens and water garden were restored and planted at that time. The stone and plaster and timber home next door was designed and built by my parents and completed 58 years ago. It now has been extensively renovated and these gardens were replaced and extended. Both homes are at Lake Lotawana, Missouri.”

“This place is very special to my family because my dad at age 10 helped build our original family cabin across the lake with his father (my grandfather). So my grandkids are the fifth generation at this lake. It was important to me to keep the family coming by having room for all of them to come and enjoy the lake together. Hopefully, my great grandkids will continue the family tradition!”
